MUSTER FOR NEW ATTACK IN N. CHINA

Dire Reprisals Threatened By Japanese for Capture Of Mongol Stronghold

REAL ASSISTANCE SENT BY NANKING

KWANGSI, Suiyuan Province, China, Nov. 27 (P).—Suiyuan's provincial army headquarters declared today two divisions of Manchukuoan troops, "including many Japanese," had reached the outskirts of Shangtu, Chahar Province, preparatory to renewing an attack in Suiyuan. Chinese sources asserted the Mongols, driven from the strategic city of Pailingmiao, planned to attempt to regain that point and also recapture lost positions in Eastern Suiyuan.

JAPANESE PRISONERS

Japanese army officers were reported held prisoners by the Suiyuan army after the capture of Pailingmiao. Headquarters of General Fu Tuo-Yi, Suiyuan commander, said the Nanking (Central) Chinese Government finally had given real assistance to the Suiyuan forces, sending four infantry divisions and one cavalry division to join them.

Word received here said 400 regulars quit the Mongols and their alleged Japanese helpers at Shangtu and reverted to bandit status. Bloody fighting in Eastern Suiyuan Province during the past few weeks was climaxed Tuesday night when General Fu's well-trained and equipped army defeated a strong force of Mongols and Manchukuoan irregulars at Pailingmiao and Wuchuan.

Chinese military headquarters said today General Fu Tuo-Yi had received a strong, unrelenting threat that the Japanese Kwangsi army would be thrown into the Suiyuanese.

FOREIGN FUNDS FLOW INTO U.S.

Treasury Shows Billions Received in Twenty-One Months

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (P).—Publishing for the first time the details of foreign capital movements, which President Roosevelt recently expressed concern over, the United States Treasury today disclosed a $2,381,659,000 net capital influx from abroad between January 1, 1935, and last September 30. This influx, representing the excess of funds coming into the country over those going out, was chiefly from Great Britain, Switzerland, France, the Netherlands and Canada.

HIGHEST IN HISTORY

Correlated with Commerce Department reports on capital movements in the Treasury survey indicated foreign holdings in this country approximated $7,000,000,000—believed the highest in history—on September 30.

Of the $2,381,659,000 net capital influx in the twenty-one-month period, the Treasury report showed, $1,353,072,000 was in short-term banking funds, $908,429,000 in securities, and $223,158,000 in brokerage balances.

SOME FIGURES MISSING

Some inflows, such as direct investments in real estate, were not shown as far as they may have been recorded through the channel of bank balances. Of the aggregate, $780,204,000 came from the United Kingdom; $297,630,000 from Switzerland; $201,949,000 from France; and $197,962,000 from the Netherlands. Canada provided $138,482,000 and Latin America, $139,926,000.

Accusations Leveled by Tucker Against Officers Of Dry Squad Answered

Chief of Police and Sergeant Deny Charges at Vancouver Inquiry

OPERATION OF CLUBS GIVEN CLOSE STUDY

VANCOUVER, Nov. 26 (P).—Inspector Walter Shirley, head of the city police dry squad, was removed from office and reduced in rank because he began to drink, Chief Constable W. W. Foster testified at a commission hearing today into charges made by W. A. Tucker, discharged police accountant.

"It's a man I trust in every other respect," Chief Foster said as he told of his inspector's breakdown under stress of sickness and extra work.

DEMOTED TO SERGEANT

Inspector Shirley was demoted to the rank of sergeant, entailing loss of seniority, Chief Foster said. (Tucker, in his 140-page report, charged the head of the dry squad had been drinking heavily; that the second in command had been taking friends to bootleggers and entertaining them at the bootleggers' expense, and that "another inspector" had been visiting bootleggers and drinking at their expense.)

TRYING TO GET CANADIAN RADIO

New Corporation's Policy Requires Essentially National Basis

OTTAWA, Nov. 26 (P).—Development of radio programmes that have an essentially Canadian flavor—entertainment that could originate in no other place—was the objective laid today before a conference of broadcasting officials by Major Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's policy of building up a broad structure of distinctly Canadian radio entertainment.

SURVEY OF TALENT

The conference was a part of the general survey being made by the corporation of Canada's available talent and possibilities of more extended development. While it is intended to utilize the best and most desirable features of radio entertainment originating outside the Dominion, the corporation plans to create and develop diversified and purely Canadian entertainment, not only for the Dominion network, but for short wave transmission, which will make it available to the world.

IS COMING WEST

The conference concluded at noon, and Major Murray will leave at once on his projected tour of Quebec and the Maritime provinces. Later he will make a similar visit to Western Canada. A meeting of the board of governors will be held in mid-December.

Thirty Women Among Applicants for Places in Crew of Girl Pat

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Nov. 26 (P).—The Grimsby trawler Girl Pat, which ended an illicit cruise half-way around the world in Georgetown last June, is soon to be sailed back to England by Commander R. W. Lawrence, war-time submarine navigator, it was learned today. From 500 applicants, including thirty women, a new crew and slate of officers has been chosen by Lady Houston, noted English sportswoman, who bought the Girl Pat. Lady Houston has announced plans to give the trawler to Captain George Osborne and the fishermen who accompanied him when the vessel disappeared from the North Sea fishing fleet and fled down the coasts of Europe and Africa, across the Atlantic to South America.

Action Fails to Upset Wills Involving Ambrose Small Estate—Judge Describes Purported Confession of Widow as Forgery

TORONTO, Nov. 26 (P).—A sensational story that vanished Ambrose Small was murdered seventeen years ago, based on a confession ascribed to his wife, collapsed late today when Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey dismissed with costs an action to upset the Small wills, involving a $2,000,000 estate.

"Incredible," the judge called the case made out in an eight-day trial by witnesses for Mary Florence Small, sister of the long-lost millionaire theatre owner. In an oral judgment lasting an hour and ten minutes in non-jury Supreme Court, he rejected the purported murder confession of Mrs. Theresa Small as an "unquestioned forgery."

SOLELY RESPONSIBLE

The whole case against the dead Mrs. Small, in the judge's opinion, was initiated by Patrick Sullivan, who spent years investigating the Small mystery, and said from the witness stand this week that he watched Mrs. Small sign the confession in Toronto in 1929, six years before her death. "I would put nothing past him," he testified.

Boycott of United States Ships Ordered—General Strikes Threatened in Country's Great Oil and Mining Industries—Bull Ring First Property Seized Under New Legislation

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 26 (P).—The Mexican Confederation of Workers ordered a boycott of United States ships tonight, oil workers charged misrepresentation of their demands by producers, and the Miners' Syndicate voted a general strike.

EXPANDS EARLIER ORDER

The boycott order included Gulf of Mexico ports and was an expansion of an earlier order this week for boycott of American ships calling at Pacific Coast ports—in sympathy with maritime strikers in the United States.

SAFETY ZONE IS PROMISED

As the labor situation became increasingly acute, there were reliable reports that the first application of the new wealth distribution law would be Government appropriation of the city's bull ring.

New Bill Regulating French Press Comes Before the Deputies

Legislation Introduced by Premier Blum Aims at Repression of Attacks Such as That Held Responsible for Death of Salengro

PARIS, Nov. 26 (CP-Havas).—Premier Blum's new press bill, designed among other aims, to repress such attacks as those which allegedly caused the suicide of Interior Minister Roger Salengro, started on the road to a vote when the civil legislation committee of the Chamber of Deputies took it under consideration today.

Communist members declared the proposed law was insufficient in respect to supervision of newspapers' financial resources. Deputies of various parties questioned the provisions pertaining to supervision of finances of small provincial journals. Reservations were also expressed regarding the clauses obliging all newspapers to become limited liability companies.

BAN AND CORRECTIONS

The committee accepted the articles empowering the Government to ban publications issued abroad and to oblige newspapers to insert gratuitously all corrections demanded by Government ministries in regard to the exercise of their functions.

In addition to the measures which first became known yesterday, the bill provides:

The director, the managing director or any person mandated to sign for a publishing company will be considered under the law as a responsible managing director. Such companies will be obliged to publish the names of directors and stockholders owning one-tenth or more of the capital stock.

PRISON FOR OFFENDERS

Offences against the law will be punishable by prison terms of from three months to one year and fines of from 1,000 to 10,000 francs, plus a fine equivalent to the total of any concealed foreign funds.

The same sentences will hold for those found guilty of slandering the courts, the armed forces, official bodies, or the public authorities.

Slander of foreign chiefs of state will be punished by a maximum prison term of one year and a fine, prosecution taking place ex officio or on the request of the foreign minister concerned.

QUICK PROCEDURE

Quick court procedure will be arranged if the slander originates against a candidate for public office.

SLEUTHS WATCH TOYLAND WARES

United States Justice Department Keeps an Eye on New "Machines"

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—Uncle Sam's Justice Department is keeping an eye on Santa Claus these days. G-men are taking no chances on his smuggling a crime wave into Toyland in his Christmas sack.

They were particularly suspicious of the newest thing in toy typewriters. These machines, part of the annual display of the toy manufacturers of the United States, had to be registered with the Federal Government before they could be offered for sale. It was disclosed.

There was ample ground for the precaution, for a toy typewriter was once used to type a kidnap extortion note. In that case, police were baffled because they could not recognize the make of typewriter, although they had records of the type faces of all known machines.

SLEUTHS ACTIVE

Since then the type face of new toy machines has been added to the Justice Department files. Right behind the G-men on Santa's trail were the sleuths of the secret service.

Toy money, used in toy cash registers, which really ring up change, must meet the specifications of the Treasury Department. Coins that look too much like the real thing might be used by counterfeiters.

Toyland may thus appear plagued with embryonic public enemies, but as these whose principal actions are being motivated by selfish thoughts of love, had better be careful how they allow impulses to rule them this day.

If a woman and November 27 is her birthday, you are blessed with a happy disposition, an optimistic nature, and a keen sense of humor. You ought to have a great amount of energy. Your ideas are frequently unique, and ought to have commercial possibilities. You may be inclined to disregard conservative methods when your enthusiasm is aroused and you are reaching out for some objective. You have probably a very vivid imagination and a great desire for both social and commercial position. You may be able to work best if left alone, and allowed to do things your own way. You are apt to have a great amount of curiosity that you must keep under control. As a shop manager, lecturer, singer, actress, author, saleslady, artist or sculptor, you should meet with success. If you do not try to regulate your husband's flit too vigorously, your matrimonial prospects are good.

The child born on November 27 can be expected, during adolescence, to show a well-balanced mentality, physical fitness, and a lovable personality. This child's future appears to be very bright, and full of promise of big things.

If a man and November 27 is your natal day, you should not be too independent, or dreamy. As an architect, engineer, mining promoter, real estate operator, salesman, inventor or manufacturer, you might be able to accumulate a fortune.

"SAGITTARIUS"

If November 27 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a.m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p.m., and from 8:45 to 10:45 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a.m. from 4:45 to 6:45 p.m., and from 10:45 p.m. until midnight.

Make up your mind that you will not allow anything to ruffle your temper this day, for you are apt to meet with a very exasperating type of individual. Be deaf to disagreeable remarks. If it is possible for you to ignore them, for this is a poor day for controversies. You may have the opportunity of exercising your will power to resist a temptation which, if given in to, will only get you into trouble. Make ample provision for your requirements if you go shopping or traveling for insufficient funds can cause some very embarrassing complications this day. Be careful some form of advertising does not give you the wrong impression regarding the actual value of an article being offered for sale. Financial losses are apt to be sustained through gossamer impressions. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whose principal actions are being motivated by selfish thoughts of love, had better be careful how they allow impulses to rule them this day.

You may be inclined to disregard conservative methods when your enthusiasm is aroused and you are reaching out for some objective. You have probably a very vivid imagination and a great desire for both social and commercial position. You may be able to work best if left alone, and allowed to do things your own way. You are apt to have a great amount of curiosity that you must keep under control. As a shop manager, lecturer, singer, actress, author, saleslady, artist or sculptor, you should meet with success. If you do not try to regulate your husband's flit too vigorously, your matrimonial prospects are good.

The child born on November 27 can be expected, during adolescence, to show a well-balanced mentality, physical fitness, and a lovable personality. This child's future appears to be very bright, and full of promise of big things.

If a man and November 27 is your natal day, you should not be too independent, or dreamy. As an architect, engineer, mining promoter, real estate operator, salesman, inventor or manufacturer, you might be able to accumulate a fortune.

Typewriters and Automobile Burn

Taking fire while parked in a temporary garage at 141 George Road, a Packard sedan, was totally destroyed shortly before 9 o'clock yesterday morning along with twelve typewriters, cheque protectors and adding machines, the property of Victor Wheatley. The loss was estimated at approximately $1,500.

The origin of the fire could not be determined. It was stated by fire department officials, but it was the belief it started from defective wiring in the automobile. The building was not seriously damaged, due to efficient work by the city fire department.

SEEKS RECORD ON HORSEBACK

Australian Riding From Melbourne to Attend Coronation Celebration

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—The dock strike veterans' dinner in London recently in honor of Ben Tillett, leader of the great dock strike in 1889, was one of the most remarkable celebrations ever seen in the metropolis. The spirit of the occasion was summed up by the chairman at the outset, when he announced that "His Grace the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster will be followed by Miss Vespa Victoria, the famous comedienne."

MIXED GATHERING

It probably was the most mixed gathering in London's history, even in the cosmopolitan Labor movement. It was held in the very temple of capitalism—Thames House, Westminster—and veteran dockers, many of them without collars or ties, sat down to eat with members of Parliament, great religious leaders, famous actors and actresses, and even the oldest of them joined merrily in the fun.

There was a real mixture of English dignity and cockney humor in the proceedings, and serious speeches by the Archbishop, Most Rev. Arthur Hinsley, Ben Tillett and another well-known old-time Labor leader, Tom Mann.

CITY PAYS RENT IN HORSE SHOES

London Recompenses King in Split Pagoda for Valuable Piece of Property

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Quaint customs of the thirteenth century were revived in the Law Courts, London, when the King's Remembrancer, Sir George Bonner, attended to receive from the City Corporation quit rents in respect of two properties which have long since lost their identity.

The properties are described as a piece of waste ground called the Moors, in Bridgenorth, and "a tenement called 'The Forge' in the Parish of St. Clement Danes," which, according to recent discoveries, stood on the site of Australia House in the centre of the metropolis.

A NEW HATCHET For the Moors, A. F. I. Pickford, the city solicitor, solemnly produced a new hatchet and billhook with which he severed two "fagots," which were, in fact, little bundles of twigs. For the Forge, he counted out with due ceremony six ancient immovable hereditaments and sixty-one nail, both of which have been in possession of the Crown for more than 500 years.

The hereditaments are supposed to have been made for Flemish horses ridden by knights templar on a neighboring living ground.

King County Has Long Death List

SEATTLE, Nov. 26 (AP)—King County's 148th traffic fatality of the year occurred last night when an automobile hit Mrs. Matska Kira, twenty-six, one of a group of Japanese women crossing at an intersection. G. O. Brooks, twenty-nine, older, reported to police he was unable to avoid striking her. He was held in lieu of $5,000 corner's bail.

Luck Might Have Been Much Worse

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 26 (AP)—Thirteen persons sat down to Thanksgiving dinner at the Arthur Aldrich home here today, and the jinx came true in the form of fire.

The blaze burned the roof off the house at a loss of about $5,000, but the thirteen were thankful the fire did not become serious until after they had consumed the meal.

RAILROAD TRIES LECTURE TRAINS

Official Announcer Explains Points Of Interest to Sight-Seeing Passengers Along Route

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—"Rubberneck Trains" or "Barker Specials" may become a regular feature of United States railroads, starting next Spring.

As an experiment, the Central Railroad of New Jersey sent a six-car excursion train on a 325-mile tour of historic country with R. D. Branch, the line's general passenger agent, acting as invisible Barker.

The trip was made by 150 representatives, customers who paid $3 apiece. All agreed it was excellent entertainment at the price, although a slanting rain beat upon the windows of the cars and passengers looked out upon a gloomy countryside.

ALL ABOUT IT The train visited Philadelphia and then turned north to Bethlehem, where the impressive structures of the Bethlehem Steel Company emerged from the gloom. The lecturer told the passengers all about the output of the army of workmen employed there. As they ate lunch in the dining car, the passengers kept their ears as well as their mouths open. The lecturer went on at intervals, whenever a place of interest came within sight.

At Valley Forge the excursionists got out for a visit to Washington's headquarters, and for a damp ramble through Valley Forge Park.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 26 (AP)—Five per cent of salary cuts will be restored to Vancouver civic employees, effective December 1, it was announced today.

Mayor McEwen yesterday gave his vote in favor of the restoration, defeating an amendment to put the question off until after the civic elections. Alderman W. W. Smith said the restoration would cost the city $24,000 for December and $280,000 next year.

NEW FACTORY COMING HERE

W. A. Stenner Will Install
Furniture Manufacturing in Old Hiker Property

Announcement is made that Victoria will have, in the immediate future, a furniture factory which will be operated by the W. A. Stenner Manufacturing Company, the head of the company coming from Vancouver to take up the work here. The new company will locate in the Hiker Property Company's work-shops at 874 Viewfield Road, Esquimalt.

The new industry will employ about forty or fifty persons, with the prospect of further development.

INTERESTED COMPANY
The new enterprise has been secured for the city through the efforts of E. G. Rowbottom, deputy minister of industries for the province. When the Hiker company ceased operations some time ago the plant was taken over by the department. Mr. Rowbottom immediately interested himself in securing a purchaser, and as a result Mr. A. Stenner, of Vancouver, became interested in the proposition here. The result has been that Mr. Stenner decided to transform the factory into a modern furniture manufacturing concern. Early in the new year work will be commenced.

GOVERNMENT GAINS
The Government's interest in the old Hiker plant, through the loan advanced several years ago, has been taken care of and the amount due the Government has been paid in cash. It is stated:

The plant which is to be placed in the factory will be modern in all particulars, it is announced, and will be a worthy addition to the manufacturing establishments of the city.

WIDE EXPERIENCE
Mr. Stenner has been trained from boyhood in the manufacturing of furniture. After technical training he took special university courses in all its branches, study of woods from all countries and their relative use for furniture, study and source of origin of all ingredients such as varnishes, polishes, glue, enamels, metal fittings, etc., and finally designing and making model pieces by hand from which to manufacture.

Leaving university, Mr. Stenner worked in logging camps to learn from the raw product up. For the past six years he has been designer and pattern-maker for a large Vancouver furniture manufacturing establishment.

Mr. Stenner realizes that heretofore all furniture sold in Victoria and on Vancouver Island has been imported and in anticipation of a portion of this business, he has carefully estimated he can operate his factory as a paying concern.

The latest modern machinery, already ordered, will be installed as soon as alterations and additions have been made to the plant, which will give employment to a large number of men. Mr. Stenner, as with other Canadian furniture factories, will supply the retail stores only.

CHINOOK CLUB HOLDS FROLIC

Fishermen's Group Entertains Friends at Annual Concert and Dance

The programme was arranged by a committee of the Chinookers, a group consisting of fishermen who, as President Dr. Hugh Clarke said, "were fortunate at some time or other to get a fish weighing twenty pounds or more."

The proceedings opened with a short address by Dr. Clarke, who mentioned the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association was organized by a small group of enterprising fishermen five years ago, and today boasted a membership of slightly more than 500 devotees of the art of angling. Dr. Clarke cordially welcomed friends of the club, and then appointed Charles Clarke master of ceremonies for the evening.

THE PROGRAMME
The programme consisted of solos by Miss Winnie Hall and Jack Townsend, an "Aerobic" dance by Miss Geraldine Patterson, character sketch, Ernie Prentice, Spanish dance, Miss Phyllis Addison; accordion and guitar, Ernie Fullerton and Norman Gentry, and dramatic dances by Sonya Slavina. The programme closed with an intensely humorous number, "The Operation," a skit, in silhouette, in which a doctor and his assistant perform an emergency operation and find out later they operated on the wrong man. The "operation" was done behind a white curtain with special lighting behind the operators, showing the entire performance on the screen. Those who took part were Bev, Gilson, P. Ray and B. Rowe.

The audience participated in community singing, and after the entertainment, refreshments were served, followed by a couple of hours of dancing, during which there was an estimating contest. The whole affair was well arranged and provided a pleasant evening of entertainment.

RAPID EVACUATION
Evacuation of Madrid's non-combatant population proceeded apace today. Two hundred thousand persons have already left for various points of refuge elsewhere in Spain. When the last civilian is gone, Madrid will be turned into a fortress against the insurgent advance to be resisted to the death, block by block and house by house.

The Government offensive from Aranjuez was the chief source of elation in Madrid today. For many days uncertainty had existed about the arrival of the troops in this important railway junction.

It was learned General Jose Miaja, chief of the military defence junta of the city, had purposely held up an offensive by the troops in order to obtain reinforcements of men and materials. Members of the defence junta now hope the Aranjuez Loyalists will succeed in driving the rebels back across the left bank of the Tago River, which washes Toledo.

Should this move succeed it would lessen the pressure of the Moors and Foreign Legionnaires attacking Madrid by forcing the last twenty-four hours, it was claimed.

CORONATION AND THE CHURCHES

Participation by non-Anglicans in the Coronation of the King was urged by Bishop Barnes of Birmingham in a sermon recently preached in Chapel Royal, St. James' Palace. He maintained that the Coronation service should be "an act of worship which would invite the spontaneous cooperation of the greatest possible number of good and religious citizens." The Coronation is conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury as Primate of All England and head of the Church of England as by law established. On behalf of the nation, viewed as a religious community, he carries forward the colorful ceremony which comes to its climax in anointing the King, and his investiture with crown and scepter. The service includes celebration of the Holy Communion at which the newly-crowned King communicates.

Since only members of the Established Church could take part under the present order of worship, Dr. Barnes suggests that the Coronation be taken out of its setting within the Communion Office. "Just as a man would go quietly to Communion," said the preacher, "at some early time of the day when taking on new responsibilities, just as in Shakespeare's immortal history Henry V prayed alone, early in the morning, upon St. Crispin's Day, so we should like to think that our King could quietly and unobserved make such personal religious preparation for his Coronation as he deemed right." The fact is that Westminster Abbey as a Royal Peculiar, as it is termed, subject only to the authority of the Crown, renders constitutionally possible a special service, not combined with the Communion Office, in which non-Anglican ministers might officiate. Bishop Barnes would be widely inclusive. In addition to the Free Church leaders in England, that is the Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational and Baptist, and the Moderator of the Established Church of Scotland, which is Presbyterian, place might be given to the General of the Salvation Army, who "controls a great organization, active for the good of the people."

The Christian World, of London, the leading British Nonconformist journal, is not very hopeful that Dr. Barnes' "revolutionary proposal" will be adopted by the Anglican authorities. It holds the view, however, that public opinion is overwhelmingly in favor of some reform which will give a place in the Coronation service "to the representatives of the King's loyal Nonconformist subjects," who constitute one-fourth of the population of England. The New Outlook, of Toronto, organ of the United Church of Canada, points out that the decision rests with the Coronation Committee, the chairman of which is the Duke of Norfolk, a Roman Catholic, and which has among its members such notable non-Anglicans as Sir John Simon, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Mr. David Lloyd George. The King himself is said to be sympathetic to the proposal.

RADICAL LOGIC

Some social reformers lay great store by the principle of analogy. Major Douglas, the Social Credit enthusiast, is one of these, and he affirms with great confidence, in an essay on the nature of money, that the analogy of the limited railway ticket is, for all practical purposes, exact, a railway ticket being a limited form of money. Analogical arguments vary greatly in value. In any given case the degree of value must depend on the nature of the resemblance which is taken as the basis of inference. The value of the conclusion arrived at, be it noted, will not be in direct proportion to the number of points of resemblance that may be detected. There may easily be a considerable number of points of resemblance between two given cases, but if these resemblances are mere surface likenesses, and not really fundamental, the analogical argument will possess little value, or none at all. In reasoning from analogy we should weigh rather than count the points of resemblance. Of course, after we have carefully weighed them, the more points of resemblance we can discover, the better. The mere number, however, will add to the soundness of our conclusions only if they bear upon some weighty feature common to the things compared. Major Douglas is careful to assure his followers that his analogy is "for all purposes exact."

There are, however, a few rather important features in which the supposed resemblance is inexact; in which, as a matter of fact, weighty resemblances are lacking. In the first place, while a railway company undertakes to provide its patrons with a certain kind of service, namely transportation, the State stands in no such relation to its citizens. The State is not a provider of goods and services. It is not surprising, therefore, that there is but little resemblance between national currency and railway tickets, and that little is quite unimportant. Major Douglas, with tears in his voice, bewails the folly of an imaginary railway company which failed to keep on hand an adequate supply of railway tickets for prospective travelers. Here, however, the analogy is very far from exact. Let the Government double, treble, or quadruple the amount of its currency and the ill effects of such a policy would soon be felt in the business of the country. The railway company might double, treble, or multiply a hundred times, the number of its railway tickets, but that would produce no effect whatever upon the number of its passengers.

Someone has said that if a social or other reformer has a system or a philosophy that he wishes to advertise, let him inject into it a judicious mixture of metaphor and mysticism, thus imparting to it a recondite quality beyond the range of ordinary knowledge. This will provide a stimulus for endless controversy and tend to give permanence to his system. Major Douglas shows that he appreciates the value of vague and indefinite ideas for the purpose of creating controversy. He says that the chief factor in production is a vague something which is not land and not capital, and not to be confused with labor. This fourth factor, it seems, is a communal thing, a legacy from the past, a cultural heritage of priceless value. It differs from what we ordinarily call labor, no matter how well the worker is endowed personally with knowledge, skill, initiative, and the ideals of art, industry, and morals. It is somehow or other not individual but communal. There is a principle, recognized for ages, which declares that there is no warrant for the assumption that something of a peculiar kind exists when the observed facts may be equally well explained on the supposition that no such thing exists. Major Douglas has decided, in defiance of this principle, that he can make his system more impressive by assuming the existence of a fourth factor of production. He calls it a heritage, a cultural legacy in order to give color to his contention that the skill and knowledge of the workman really belongs not to himself but to the community as such.

MR. ROBERT DUNN, JR.

An able, conscientious and painstaking member of the Provincial Government's service is lost to British Columbia in the death of Mr. Robert Dunn, Jr., the Deputy Minister of Mines. Mr. Dunn was of one time a member of the editorial staff of this newspaper, and those who worked with him recognized the qualities of heart and head which enabled him to win recognition from succeeding Provincial Governments. As a newspaperman he was a hard worker, and one who took the utmost pains to be sure about his facts. He strove after improvement all the time, and brought all his energies to bear on his task, whatever it might be. The same faculties stood him in good stead when he was given the post of secretary to the late Mr. William Sloan when that gentleman was Minister of Mines in the Oliver Government. Mr. Dunn steadily and systematically acquainted himself with mining conditions in the Province, and when the time came he was a logical successor to the office of Deputy Minister, which he filled with satisfaction to the Government and to the industry until his late illness.

Mr. Dunn had many human qualities of the better sort, including friendliness, an interest in his fellow-men, the capacity of winning likings and a genuineness which inspired respect. In whatever capacity he was engaged he gave of his best, and that best was reinforced by his faculty of concentration. He was popular in the Government service and, through his former newspaper work, had acquired a large number of friendships throughout the city and Province. His death at a comparatively early age will come as a shock, and the deepest sympathy, in which The Colonist joins, will go out to his widow and children as well as to his parents, brother and sisters.

"We are all inclined," says Lord Tweedsmuir, "to look for some short cut out of our troubles, some violent course which will shift things suddenly into a new orbit. Yes, people are thinking hard and thinking differently and canceled each other out, as the Fascists and the Communists do. Like those two so-called political creeds the chaotic outlook is more of an embarrassment than a political menace."

Why the Nobel Peace Prize should have been awarded at all this year is a mystery. It is a misnomer, for it does not connote actual achievement. The basis of its award seems to be the crying of "Peace, Peace, where there is no Peace."

Sir Robert Falconer says: "A despotic State is no broader in the long run, of close-eyed men, but it is a cramping workhouse for dull, spiritless adults," and their's not to reason why they do anything.

ENOUGH

Enough, if something from our hands have power. To live, and act, and serve the future hour. And if, as towards the silent tomb we go, Through love, through hope, and faith's transcendent power, We feel that we are greater than we know. —William Wordsworth.

How seek the way which leadeth to our wishes? By renouncing our wishes. The crown of excellence is renunciation. —Hafiz.

Note and Comment

By Sandham Graves

Homes on wheels, with fifty different models to choose from, ranging in price from $200 to $12,000, were shown this month at an Eastern automobile show. The gipsy age has arrived once more, in the cycle of our repeating history, and with it confusion to tax collectors, co-operative stores, architects, and many others who looked to the public for a fixed place of address.

Last time the nomad era arrived, the world went caravanning—in horse-drawn wagons such as the gipsy ones. For a time, in Great Britain, anyway, people traveled like itinerant tinkers, only with the pots and pans removed from the outside of the wagon, and muslin curtains hung inside to cover the windows. It was a fashionable Summer pastime. Now, it is auto trailers.

And what trailers! Three-room apartments with a bath are common on the roads, in overgrown trailers led by shrinking roadster cars. Elaborate rolling houses, with electric kitchens, bathrooms, living-rooms, refrigeration, air-conditioning, and "all the comforts of a home" are on display at auto camps throughout the continent, particularly on the other side of the international border line.

Some are equipped to accommodate four people, others living as two separate couples in duplex style, or as one family. All the devices and gadgets that formerly went into midges flats are being turned now to the production of these traveling homes for nomad, restless people. At a New York show last week, fifty different models of these homes on wheels were shown.

The craze has only just begun. What if it should develop to the point where traveling homes become the rule and not the exception? Cities would have to find provision for both fixed and floating populations. Theatres in towns would be full one week and empty the next. Doctors, lawyers, dentists, and all those who serve the public in its vagaries, would have a changing clientele. Bad debts would be written off, without recovery.

We have had the hit-and-run driver. How about the hit-and-run family? Tourist agencies may have prepared us a little for that kind of life, but there has always been a resident population that was the basis of all fixed trade. That may remain unchanged; and yet, if people are as restless as they seem, this nomad life may spread beyond all recognition.

Consider the tax gatherer. To what address will he now send his bills? He will try to regulate, surely. There will be a law to halt these traveling homes at the county border, to demand certificates of tax-paid and hill-paid occupation of that county. There will be new assessments in advance, payable while the trailer is still in sight.

And how about schooling? How can nomad, wandering people send their children to a school of any kind? Whom would they teach, and all children's ailments will be carried far and wide in traveling epidemics, pursued by health and other officers. That will mean interment, quarantine and other camps to add to those already used.

Who will work the land, till the soil and gather food for wandering millions, if they come to that? But it may not come to that. The trailer craze may die just as it was born, the passing fancy of a moment. And yet I have my doubts. If I know people as they are today, they would pick up and move at will, if homes could go with them.

Even our songs may change. To "Rolling Down to Rio" will be added "When the Joneses Southward Fly"; "Meet Me Tonight in New Orleans"; and "I'm Off to Courtney in the Morning." At least, it is an interesting age.

Captain Philipsen Ready to Assist Boat Masters Obtain Certificates

According to Dominion Government regulations, masters and mates of fish packers and cannery tenders must apply for certificates of competency. In order to assist mariners serving on either type of craft, who would be inconvenienced by having to go to Vancouver to take the examination, Captain J. A. Philipsen, of the local harbor office, will furnish fullest information regarding the same and make arrangements for Captain N. L. Lindsey, examiner of masters and mates, Western division, to come to Victoria for the purpose.

The prescribed examination for masters of fish packers and cannery tenders is as follows: (a) sight tests, (b) rule of the road with models, (c) know the important one-flag signals.

Applicants must produce birth certificate or certificate of naturalization, proof of adequate service, and at least one year as master of a fish packer or cannery tender of over ten tons gross tonnage.

Good Luck, Boys

Leo Holden and Freddy "Slim" Hunter, original members of "Slim Hunter's Rustlers," are now in England. After quite a stay at Earl, where they were on the local radio station, Hunter, who has always wanted to introduce his "Hill Billy" music in the Old Country, has just sailed for the Old Land. Since their arrival they have had an audition and are now waiting for the final word.

We are glad to see the expression of the thoughts of their many friends when we say "Good luck, boys," S.T.

Mamas Cashing In

A trio of the mothers who were finalists in the Toronto all-Canadian "Stork Derby" opened a dudeville tour in Buffalo the week after the race ended, and all will ultimately appear on Broadway. Mrs. Joe Romano, who has had twenty-three children; Mrs. Hilda Graziano, thirty-seven-year-old mother of nine; and Mrs. Madeline Harrison, mama of fourteen, all of whom are living, are signed contracts to give four shows a day and five on Sundays if the crowds are big enough. Doubtless they'll be big enough. One can't blame the mothers for taking this means of making a little easy money. None of them has been so fortunate as to know where their "mama's rent" was coming from; often there was doubt about tomorrow's breakfast. But it's rather a commentary on the times that people will pay to see a group of competent fraus who have no talent whatever, while actors and actresses of genuine ability are ignored.

Superstitions and Supers

Superstition runs rampant in the Hollywood sector and has already permeated radio. If you whistle on the set a director will probably order you taken in iron. Some actors won't do scenes unless they have their good luck charms added to their personage. Others have to have certain articles of clothing on before they will do their lines. Addition.

The only major radio superstition is talking to your sponsor immediately before going on the air. An artist did that and he stumbled three times on stage, apparently simple words, and they came out in such a fashion as to cause him and his sponsor much embarrassment, and to say matters, the microphone went dead just as the final commercial announcement was being given. He states he won't do that again. We also learned the origin of the fatal Friday the Thirteenth. The thirteenth comes from the fact that there were thirteen at the Last Supper. Friday was determined a bad day centuries ago by astrologers who kept a definite check on all misfortune.

They found that the most serious events took place every fifth day, and that day was Friday. Speaking of the olden days watch out for a series of old-fashioned plays come out of Hollywood. There is also a run on newspaper stories in which somebody is supposed to have been killed by the Winter repeat. And so closing the little black book until tomorrow—W.J.H.

Swords and Things

We saw where a gentleman in Budweiser was in the necessity to carve up nine individuals on the field of honor who accused him of such a loss social crime as gold digging. Some of the old boys who will be freed to face the gentlemen's club are reported to be hardly able to wield the eight-pound sabre—wield for the first time. Now if they were on the side of the pond they would realize that the pen is mightier than the sword—set out their cheque books and sign their names after a few grand. Nobody would get up—most of the duellists would be greatly relieved, and men wouldn't be murdering each other over some petty reference that would be rectified with a couple of good pokes in the eye anyway—W.F.P.

"Our Scenery"

We so often see Mount Baker in "all its glory" but how many Victorians were lucky enough to see Mount Rainier in its pink and blue beauty Thursday afternoon. It is very seldom we get a glimpse of that part of "our scenery," and that only on a very clear day. They say that if Mount Baker is "out," Mount Rainier will not be seen—but Tuesday Nature outdid herself, for they were both in view—and both very beautiful. Who is luckier, Washington, who has the "mountains," or Victoria, who has the "scenery"? I think that on a day like that, we win the toss.—R.P.G.

Just a Wild Dream

While en route to work in a bus passing the City Hall, a hardware salesman noticed a young woman with a boy's haircut, man's sweater and overalls, boy's shoes and a scared lunch pail under her arm. The description reminded us of working women shown in Fred Spencer's Soviet films. For the convenience of sufferers who have no time to visit a dentist on weekdays, a Seattle doctor keeps his shop open from 9 o'clock until noon on Sundays. An excellent rule, for the first time in the history of the number thirteen because the usual term for it, "shl," has the same sound as the word for "suffer." A former Cabinet Minister gave a talk on "Where Are We Headed For?" We'd say up Debt River with a tax paddle. Bill, the Broad Street barber, has been studying psychology again in his lunch hour. He came to the conclusion that the way to develop an infallible memory with help of the subconscious mind is to do a lot of things you would like to forget. We read that residents of the United States spend $33,000 daily upon fortune tellers. These building new homes like the first to know research revealed files like white and orange colored walls but hate green and red. The scribe who pounded an alleged typewriter next to our desk is a young man of high morals. He told us it was no use having a slogan "Down with the Bad" unless you substitute another one, "Up with the Good." Our tobaccoist friend says plenty is the amount that would satisfy you if your neighbors had no more.—G.B.

CELEBRATE IN TWO COUNTRIES

Christmas Diners in America Can Welcome New Year in Europe

Marcel Delaporte, passenger traffic manager of the French Line, announces that with the December 26 sailing of the French Line flagship Normandie, world's largest vessel, for the first time in the history of ocean travel by trans-Atlantic liners, arrangements can be made whereby it will be possible for passengers to have Christmas dinner at home, in San Francisco or New York, and welcome the New Year at one of the smart restaurants or hotels in London, Paris or Berlin and other European cities.

Such a programme is made possible due to the speedy Normandie's arrival in Southampton early in the morning of December 31, together with the connections that can be made through the schedules of Air France and allied airlines.

Using the Normandie as the magic carpet, a passenger living almost anywhere in the United States may enjoy the festive meal at Christmas with family and friends and, if in outlying cities, can fly to New York in ample time to board the Normandie, which sails from pier eight-eight, North River at 8 p.m. December 26, and then make plans for a gala New Year's Eve party at the Mayfair or Savoy, at the Ritz or Fouquet's, at the Hotel Adlon or Haus Vaterland.

Farmer Giles was in town seeking the lights. Coming to a large building, he saw "Emment" Eschange, and a little farther it was "Women's Exchange." He entered and was met by the glare of a fierce woman behind the counter. "Is this the Women's Exchange," he inquired. "It is," scowled the woman. "Oh," he said, "and are you the woman?" "Yes, I am," "Thank you," he said, and turning to go, added, "I'll stick to my mutton."

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—A large number of applications for seats from which to view the coronation procession in London next May have been received by Hon. Vicar Starts Long Vigil

To speed-up the campaign for the Million-Shilling Fund for the extension of the crypt to St. Martin's in the Vicar, the Rev. Pat McCormick, decided to sit continuously on the steps of the church, with a collecting chest by his side, doing his office work and eating his meals at his post. He is here seen starting his self-imposed duty.

CHARGES AGAINST OFFICERS ANSWERED

Sergeant James W. Tuning, the "second-in-command" mentioned in Tucker's report, flatly denied the police accountant's charge. He also denied existence of a list of bootleggers who were immune to prosecution as charged in the report.

EXPLAINS LIMITATIONS

He testified he had told Tucker the difficulty of getting operatives into certain suspected bootlegging joints, and that all he could do was seize the liquor, under Section 77 of the Provincial Liquor Act.

Witness said there was no working agreement between city police and the Liquor Control Board.

There has never been a suggestion from the board that we seize liquor and turn it over to them," he stated.

Sections of the Tucker report dealing with conversations between Superintendent Herbert Darling and the "investigator" give an "entirely false impression of what took place," the superintendent said this afternoon.

EXPLAINS LEGAL ASPECT

City Prosecutor Oscar Orr told the commission a decision handed down by the Supreme Court of Canada on June 15, 1932, is the main obstacle to obtaining gaming house convictions in Vancouver.

"Speaking from a purely legal aspect, it doesn't matter if club operators are collecting at the

Game Commission Rejects Request To Extend Season

ROGER Monteith, president of the Affiliated Fish and Game Associations of Vancouver Island, was yesterday informed by letter that the request to extend the buck deer hunting season two weeks has been rejected by the game commission of British Columbia. This means that the season will close on Monday, November 30. P. R. Butler, secretary to the commission, wrote, in part, as follows:

"While we are only too willing to meet the wishes of organized sportsmen in the province in connection with their recommendations, at the same time it has been decided that in this particular instance it would be unwise in the interests of conserving our deer."

to grant the extension requested. With the season closing at the above date only four days remain for hunters to qualify for the Sylvester Drive Cup, awarded annually to the sportsman who bags the largest buck on Vancouver Island.

tables every five seconds," Mr. Orr testified. "As long as the George Bampton case is precedent, the collections can be as big or as frequent as the operators wish."

"The Bampton case mentioned by Mr. Orr was 'not tried in Vancouver police court, and a conviction for keeping a gaming house was obtained against George Bampton, president of the Brunswick Sports Club here. The verdict was upheld by British Columbia Court of Appeal, but was reversed in 1932 by the Supreme Court of Canada."

CITES COURT DECISION
As the commission continued its investigation of Dominion, provincial and municipal club licensing provisions, Commissioner Macdonald asked Thomas Jones, secretary of the Brunswick Club, if he contended he was carrying on a "legitimate sports and social club, notwithstanding that a charge is made for use of tables and cards."

"That is supported by the Supreme Court decision in the case of Rex vs. Bampton," Mr. Jones replied.

Robert Mercer, licensed club manager, said the Brunswick Sports Club listed about 13,000 members, and that thirty-two card tables were operated. He explained each player pays for a seat at the card tables, and a collection is made every time a hand is dealt.

"The Supreme Court decision in the Bampton case was based on evidence that no part of the stakes is taken by the club, although a charge is made for use of facilities," Mr. Orr said later.

Commissioner Macdonald estimated revenue from the club at $155,000 per year.

SAYS BRIBES OFFERED
Detective W. J. McFarlane testified that he had been approached by two Chinese who wished to buy police immunity for gaming houses by bribes.

"One Oriental had offered him $50 per week to allow a gaming house to operate, and suggested the house be raided periodically and that a keeper who would plead guilty, would be arrested, witness told the commission."

"Last" Autumn, another Chinese had offered Detective Morrison $100 himself $500 to permit three houses to run. "Then they refused, the Chinese said they were fools to work on small wages when they could make more money by being smart," McFarlane testified.

"Do you know of any pay-off system in Vancouver asked Crown Counsel R. L. Matland, K.C."

"No, none at all."

"The detective said a pay-off system is impossible under the present system of police operation, because gambling supervision in the department is not under supervision of any small group of detectives."

The mission schools in Japan hitherto supported by the Presbyterian Church in Canada, will be turned over to the Japanese Government on account of the restrictions laid upon the teachers in the matter of religious instruction. The land will be sold and the money released for evangelistic purposes.

PLAN ADVISORY BOARD FOR B.C.

George L. Schetky, Vancouver, Addresses Fire Insurance Agents in City

A regular meeting of the Victoria District Fire Insurance Agents' Association was held on Wednesday, there being a large attendance, under the presidency of Col. F. B. J. Stephenson.

The secretary reported that Lohay, Bolton & Holden had audited the books and balance sheet of the secretary-treasurer and had found them correct.

The chairman introduced George L. Schetky, Vancouver, to the meeting, as probably one of the oldest fire insurance agents in British Columbia and as one who had taken the keenest interest in his work.

Mr. Schetky said that it was over forty years ago since he started as an insurance agent in Nanaimo, and since that time much development had taken place. There was great difference between old rate book No. 3 and the present system of rating, he said.

CHAIRMAN PRAISED

Insurance men throughout Canada owe a great deal to R. J. Wickham, Montreal, chairman of the Canadian Federation of Insurance Agents, Mr. Schetky declared. Much had been accomplished through his efforts, but there were still unclimbed heights. He considered apathy and indifference could be overcome through the agency of a qualification law. In the Province of Quebec, it had been started and it had not only weeded out the inefficient, but it had spurred on the deserving agent.

The National Association of Agents in the U.S.A. was a power of good and now embraced 12,000 members representing over 100 individual agents. Business development, general research and co-operation were parts of its programme, Mr. Schetky said.

ADVISORY BOARD

The meeting was informed that the committee has succeeded in drawing up a plan for an advisory board for British Columbia. A delegation traveled through the interior of the Province, interviewed the agents there and met with their hearty approval and promises of support. Petitions were circulated all over the Province and generously signed. A delegation waited upon the Attorney-General, arranged by J. B. Forrester, M.P.P., when a Victoria delegation joined the Mainland group. The Attorney-General was quite impressed by the number of petitions and promised his support right away, the speaker asserted.

AMENDMENT PASSED

An amendment to the Insurance Act was passed at the last session of the House empowering the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council to make provision for the establishment of an advisory board for the purpose of assisting the Superintendent of Insurance.

At the conclusion of Mr. Schetky's address, a vote of thanks was passed to him for his kindness throughout motion of Frank Jordan (B.C. Land & Investment Agency) and B. Russell Kerr (Ker & Stephenson Ltd.).

Short addresses were given by D. A. McGregor, district manager of the B.C.I.U.A., and by Fire Chief Alex. Munroe.

DEMAND PAYMENT OF TRADES FEES

Two Convictions Recorded in Saanich Police Court for Delinquent License Returns

Saanich police will summons all persons in the municipality who have not paid current trades licence fees, Chief Allan Rankin said yesterday in Saanich police court as two convictions under the municipal by-law were recorded.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall assessed two merchants $5 for nonpayment of their fees, due last July 16. He ordered them to secure current trades licences immediately. Both pleaded guilty.

Chief Rankin advised those who had not secured licences to take them out immediately to avoid prosecution.

Another campaign launched by Saanich police to prevent shooting of firearms in restricted areas resulted in fines of $10 for Frank Dunne and Charles Brown, and the confiscation of Dunne's rifle.

Magistrate Hall granted a further remand of one week to Ram Parab Singh and Rutna Singh, who are charged with robbing Bachan Singh of $55 at Beaver Lake on November 8. Both were released on bail of $1,000. M. B. Jackson, K.C., appeared for the accused while C. Harrold Tait represented the municipality.

FILE PAPERS FOR CIVIC CONTESTS

Harold O. Simpson and Percy E. George Deposit Declarations With Returning Officer

Two sets of nomination papers for the forthcoming civic elections, one for alderman and the other for school trustee, were filed with Frank Hunter returning officer at the City Hall yesterday. Nomination day is on December 3.

Harold Oscar Simpson, 1622 Camosun Street, manufacturer agent, was proposed for alderman by Alexander Mackinnon, 1001 Oliphant Street, and seconded by J. A. Ewer, 77 San Juan Avenue.

Percival Edward George, music dealer, 3171 Mars Street, was proposed for school trustee by W. T. Strath, 1524 Gladstone Avenue, and seconded by Alderman Dr. J. D. Hunter.

School Trustee Charles R. Bishop, who has a year still to serve on the School Board, denied emphatically last evening that he had any intention of resigning. He declared he was interested in technical changes of the Municipal Act dealing with the status of school trustees or aldermen who were in any way concerned with city contracts or business, and was seeking legal opinion to clarify the situation.

Chapter Will Be Affiliated With Council

Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., decided at its meeting last evening at headquarters to affiliate with the Victoria Council of Social Agencies, and Mrs. George Miles and Mrs. Kyrle Symons were appointed delegates to attend the next meeting of the council. Mrs. J. W. Hudson reported having attended the conference of the council of social agencies, and Mrs. Kenneth Barr, who was present at last night's meeting, spoke of the aims and objects of the council and outlined its work.

Mrs. William Ellis presided and twelve chapters were represented. Mrs. W. K. Anderson, a visitor from The Pas, Manitoba, was welcomed by the recent members.

Mrs. F. R. Wright, delegate to the Victoria Branch of the League of Nations Society, brought in a report. Mrs. F. F. Beckett told of the progress made by the dead and dumb student in whom the chapter is interested. A request was made for a chapter to volunteer to adopt a school at Fanny Bay. So far no chapter has responded.

CHAPTER DISBANDED

Mrs. A. H. C. Phipps, organizing secretary, regretted that the chapter of the Commodore Broughton Chapter had been disbanded in this group having disbanded.

Mrs. Cashmore, the standard bearer, reported the standard having been carried at the Remembrance Day service, and on that day the Royal Brigade Chapter decorated the Cross of Sacrifice. Mrs. J. T. Jones, Echoes secretary, told of the tea held recently in honor of the Provincial Echoes secretary, Mrs. Grant.

CLOTHING RECEIVED

Mrs. M. J. Child, welfare convenor, thanked Gonzales Chapter for its donation of clothing. Mrs. C. W. Plumb, soldiers' grave convenor, spoke of the need for donations to be sent in before Christmas. Gonzales Chapter had placed a wreath on the Cross of Sacrifice on Remembrance Day and one had been placed by Municipal Chapter on the Cenotaph.

Reports of standing committees showed progress in all departments.

Y.W.C.A. Notes

The popular book "Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell, is to be reviewed this afternoon by Mrs. Albert Sullivan at the Y.W.C.A. reading group.

Any senior Victoria girls are invited to the last of the Y.W.C.A. course, "The Life Beautiful," to be given by Mrs. W. E. Stevenson on Monday at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Stevenson was the guest speaker at the world fellowship hour and the girls are looking forward to hearing her again. The girls attending the personality group are invited to stay for a social time afterwards, as guests of the club girls.

Wednesday night marked a milestone in the history of the physical department. The pep class appeared for the first time in uniform and presented a picturesque group. This class was followed by a Jones game against the college. The game finished with the college team victorious; the Y.W.C.A. team had previously won a match by a similar score and are looking forward to the play-off game. The basketball and gymnasium groups entertained the visiting team at the Y.W.C.A. building after the game.

The December meeting of the Girls' Council is scheduled for Thursday at 6 o'clock. The programme committee, convened by Frances Wood, has plans for Christmas service projects, departmental affairs and inter-group activities to be considered by the council.

Next Tuesday at 9 o'clock is the date set for the joint Y.M.C.A.-Y.W.C.A. committee to meet and make initial arrangements for the New Year frolic. They are looking that this year's dance will prove an even greater attraction than last year.

Wearing travel talks and ballroom dancing have been the highlights of the Thursday Club programme recently. This week's meeting took the form of a "go-and-see" evening. A theatre party and a visit to Carey & McAllister's darkroom was arranged. Both groups returned later to the Y.W.C.A. for refreshments.

The Y.W.C.A. Choral Club under the direction of Miss Kate Frances Edie, is having a happy and profitable time preparing for the musical play, "Good King Wenceslas."

Duchess Appears in "Harebell" Hat

LONDON, Nov. 26 (P)—The Duchess of Gloucester set a new fashion in hats when attending a tea and reception of the Girls' Life Brigade at the Outlets' Hall, London. This was her first meeting with officers and girls since she became patron of the brigade a few months ago.

The Duchess wore an ankle-length frock of silver georgette crepe, with a gracefully draped neckline. With this she wore a tiny circular skull-cap of grey attached velvet with scalloped edges coming to a little point in the centre of the crown, rather like an inverted harebell.

Two hundred officers and eighty girls from all parts of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales were waiting to greet the Duchess, who remained with them for about an hour.

Beaux-Arts Celebrates Anniversary

The fifth anniversary of the Beaux-Arts was celebrated last night at the Crystal Garden, when an entertaining programme was followed by a most enjoyable dance.

Miss Helen Sweetland, the president, sat in the chair, and welcomed the special guests and patrons of the society who attended. Final arrangements for the annual Snow Ball Frolic to be held in December were discussed and tickets distributed.

The programme opened with a one-act play "In the Darkness," a tragedy, directed by Wilton Knowlton. The cast was as follows: Bess, Betty Petch; Lizzie, Barbara Lloyd-Young; Arth, Gordon Fraser; and Nate, Wilton Knowlton. Miss Doreen McGregor was the prompter.

"Dresden China Dolls" was the artistic dance presented under the direction of Mrs. Jack Barraclough. The girls were taken by Maureen Grace, as Columbine; Nan Eve, Harlequin; Betty Petch, old fashioned lady; B. Pennock, old fashioned gentleman; Ellen Regan, shepherdess; and Lorraine Pendray, shepherd. In the scene the dancers were grouped on pedestals to appear as statues and in turn each came to life and danced and then returned to her position. So popular was this dance that an encore was given.

A comic song was sung by Bill Deaper, and a monologue was given as an encore. Leonard Ares accompanied him at the piano.

The birthday cake with its pink lighted candles centred the supper table and was cut by Mrs. Walter Nichol, who wished the club a most successful year.

Mothers Hear Good Advice

Dr. Henrietta Anderson led a lively discussion with a group of mothers this week at the Friendly Help Welfare Association office. Questions were asked as to how to improve children's table manners, how to make children obey promptly, and how far one should allow a child to make his own decisions. Many other points came up in the course of the discussion, and the mothers appreciated the discovery that other parents were going through the same difficulties.

Dr. Anderson suggested practical ways of meeting these problems, and clearly demonstrated that a mother's work demanded intelligence, understanding and sacrifice.

This was the third of a series of meetings being held under the auspices of the case committee of the Friendly Help Welfare Association. Tea was served by Mrs. J. J. Pilgrim.

Bragging HUSBANDS!

There used to be plenty of jokes about wives who made meals with can-openers. But men who get meals nowadays from tins bearing the Heinz label don't grumble at their wives—they boast about them! That's because everything Heinz makes is so pure—so enticing—with such real homelike flavour.

Heinz Cooked Spaghetti, for example, is a delicious meal in itself, or it is often welcomed in generous helpings as a side dish. Heinz tomato sauce and other selected ingredients also add zest to each tender strand of the succulent spaghetti, rich with all the nourishment of milk, cheese, butter and wheat.

Give your husband a chance to brag. Have Heinz Spaghetti always on hand, and keep beside it a tin or two of Heinz Cooked Macaroni, a prepared with a rich cream sauce and zippy cheese. Your dealer has both and Heinz prices are moderate.

Railway Company Is Offering Low Rates to Resort

The residents of Banff, the little rocky town rapidly looming into prominence as Canada's greatest winter sports grounds are beginning now to prepare sports facilities in readiness for the expected invasion from Vancouver, Victoria, Nanaimo and intervening points, of visitors under the Canadian Pacific Railway's low inclusive rail-and-hotel fare offer, good up to seven ten or thirty-day stay at Banff.

round-trip fares applying from the above points, to be in effect from December 15 of this year, to January 31, 1937. In the case of Vancouver Island residents, similar low fares to cover the steamship portion of travel are also arranged.

With a mile-long toboggan course, excellent skating rinks, curling ice and skiing slopes to suit the most daring skier, Banff is the ideal tonic for the coast-bound holidayer, and under the present all-inclusive low fare rates, a heavy stream of enthusiasts is anticipated between the December 15-January 31 period.

A boy watching a car being loaded at the station, inquired: "Why do they call it a ship when it goes in a car?"

COMEDY SUCCESS IS AT DOMINION

"Pigskin Parade," With Heavy Cast
Of Stars, Is Bright Musical
Of College Life

Half-backs, laugh-backs, tune takers, co-ed cuties, Boala-Boala boys and gridiron heroes down on the campus, swing on the football field, dance on the sidelines and romance in the stands in "Pigskin Parade," the uproarious Twentieth Century-Fox musical football hit that opens today at the Dominion Theatre.

Featuring a cast hand-picked for entertainment, including Stuart Erwin, Johnny Downs, Arline Judge, Betty Grable, Patry Kelly, Jack Haley, the Yacht Club Boys, Dixie Dunbar, Anthony Martin and Judy Garland, the film is a flip, fast frolic, punctuated with "torch" tunes and highlights with campus romances.

Merrier than "Thanks a Million" and swifter than "Sing, Baby, Sing," "Pigskin Parade" scores a smashing entertainment touchdown as it tells the hilarious story of a small backwoods college, invited by mistake to play Boala-Boola in a big inter-collegiate game.

COLUMBIA Farina, beloved by theatre children for her happy smile and kinky pig tails in "Our Gang" comedies, will scarcely be recognized in Joe E. Brown's latest First National comedy, "You Said a Mouthful," now playing at the Columbia Theatre. Farina is now eleven. He has cut off his pig tails and now appears in his rightful character as a boy-un-football frolic, punctuated with "torch" tunes and highlights with campus romances.

OAK BAY Lovers of Viennese theatre waltz music will find "Waltz Time in Vienna," now at the Oak Bay Theatre a delightful ear and eye treat in which they may enjoy more than a full hour's worth of the melodies of Johann Strauss and Joseph Lanner played by the Vienna Symphony Orchestra.

PLAZA "Sins of Man," The Theatre Darryl F. Zanuck Twentieth Century production now at the Plaza Theatre with Jean Hersholt in the starring role, marks the 428th picture in which the veteran actor has appeared since coming to America.

ATLAS A six-gun peacemaker THEATRE matches wits with a woman and trades gunfire with some of the toughest outlaws of the Old West, in the high-speed adventure picture, which opened yesterday at the Atlas Theatre. The film, "Hopalong Cassidy Returns," is another screen adaptation of a story by Clarence E. Mulford, adventure writer and author of the "Hopalong" series.

Screen News at Dominion Shows Scenes in Spain

THE bitter struggle in Spain gains paramount place in The Colonial-Universal Newsreel, commencing today at the Dominion Theatre. Battle scenes before besieged Oviedo clearly show the terrible property damage inflicted by insurgent shell fire and the fierce resistance put up by the Loyalist troops.

Other scenes of world-wide interest are the receipt given President Roosevelt on his triumphant return to the White House; the rousing welcome given Captain James Molloy at Croydon Airport as he completed his record-making West-to-East trans-Atlantic flight; a new automobile for cross-country travel devised in Germany; and the opening game of the ice hockey season when Detroit defeated the Maple Leafs at Toronto.

Butler, on behalf of the Thermopylae Club, and Chief Engineer

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

By Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

ARRESTED DEVELOPMENT

There are certain temptations which we associate with childhood. Among these is "playing with fire," or "monkeying with the buzz saw." But if the habits of many supposed adult contract players are criteria, we shall have to conclude that children hold no copyright on even this one particular frolic.

Time and again a declarer will await the opening lead in fear and trembling, praying that it will not be a certain suit. Many times his prayer will be answered. And then what happens? Why he forgets his fear as promptly as politicians forget campaign promises, and sticks his fingers back on the buzz saw as if to give it another chance. The error made by the declarer in today's hand was just plain childish.

The bidding:

Strong as South's hand was he breathed a quick sigh of relief when West's heart lead, and dummy's last card was neatly arranged. South had foreseen that the well-earned fear of the spade situation and had reached automatically for a low heart in the dummy, taking it for granted that his own queen-ten would suffice to win the trick.

When East, however, propped up with the king declarer awoke suddenly (but too late) to the fact that he was hanging over a precipice.

East could count by the "rule of eleven" that declarer had two cards in hearts—higher than the seven spot opening lead. He saw that if one of these were the queen North-South had two heart stoppers.

South had two heart stoppers. The same conclusion applied to declarer's hand in tomorrow's article.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's article.

TERRIER DELAYS OVERHEAD TRAIN

Runs Four Miles in Front of Passenger Electric Until Foot Is Injured

LIVERPOOL, England, Nov. 26.—A black mongrel terrier ran four miles in front of an electric train on the overhead railway at Liverpool and held up the train service for half an hour.

The train, filled with passengers, was leaving Brunswick Dock when the dog was seen running ahead. Twice it crossed the live rail. Finally the dog fell exhausted, with an injured paw at Alexandra Dock. A platelayer took it back to Brunswick Station, where it escaped and ran off as fast as its injured paw would allow.

The dog is believed to have followed a passenger up the steps at Brunswick Station and so got on the line.

"All I got at her house was a cup of shamrock tea," remarked a young fellow.

"What on earth's shamrock tea?" asked his companion.

"You know the kind—made with three leaves," was the reply.

Further proof that 'Phyllosan' tablets 'give progressive benefit'

In 1933, Mrs. — was "nearly bed-ridden". She tried 'PHYLLOSAN' tablets. Gradually she recovered until she was able to walk freely without a stick. Soon she felt more than 10 years younger! She still takes 'PHYLLOSAN' tablets and is thoroughly well and active.

Read Her Letters:

THEN—"I feel so grateful for the recovery I have made owing to the steady use of 'PHYLLOSAN' tablets. I was nearly bed-ridden. Now I can walk freely without the help of a stick, climb the hills and enjoy life. I certainly feel more than 10 years younger."

TO-DAY—"I am still taking 'PHYLLOSAN' tablets three times a day. They have done a lot for me and the claims you make for them are more than justified. I know they saved me from being bed-ridden. And especially do I value their power of building up the nervous system and keeping me alert. I am very active and get out every day."

Many people, having once proved the efficacy of 'PHYLLOSAN' tablets, continue to take them from time to time for their vitalizing effect. They find that two of these little tablets taken regularly three times a day help to keep them in vigorous health and assist in maintaining youthful vitality.

Clinical experiments have proved that 'PHYLLOSAN' tablets help to revive the vigor of bodily functions. They stimulate appetite and food absorption, give increased vigor to nerves and brain, and increase the physical and vital forces of the body.

And it is so simple! Just two of these tiny tablets three times a day before meals. Take them regularly. The results will encourage you highly.

'PHYLLOSAN' tablets are prepared according to the formula and under the direction of E. Burget, M.D., Professor of Medicine at Berne University.

URGES GREATER CITY INTEREST

Governor of Rotary District
No. 1 Addresses Club at Empress Hotel

Those who do not exercise their franchise allow incompetent persons to be elected to public office. Rotarians should take a greater interest in law, observation, and their city government, Charles A. Mowry, Spokane, told the Victoria Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday. Mr. Mowry is governor of Rotary District No. 1.

He urged Rotarians to be honest with themselves in regard to vocational service and in their relationship to customers and employees. Customers were more concerned with problems of competition, he declared. He asserted economic conditions of today were the result of many harmful practices of the past, and asked clubmen to make serious efforts to improve conditions. There could never be world peace until a sufficient number desired peace, he said.

Attendance of the Victoria club had been fairly good, but not as good as it should be, he said. To Rotary a member had to be present practically all the time, he reminded clubmen. It was not without due consideration that the motto, "He profits most who serves best," had been changed to "Service above self," he declared.

HIGH STANDARD
There were 171,000 Rotarians in all parts of the world, and Rotary could not be maintained at a high standard unless every member made a conscientious effort to live up to club ideals. He hoped members of the Victoria club would work to make it an outstanding one in the district, which contained seventy-five others.

Mr. Mowry stated Rotary was the most intensive, democratic, impulsive and comprehensive organization in the world.

During the evening he addressed a club assembly in the Duke of Kent room at the Empress Hotel on Rotary aims and objects. Committee chairmen gave accounts of past activities and plans for the future.

Papers Not Keen To Injure People

GLOUCESTER, England, Nov. 26.—Justice Humphreys trusts the press, and he so expressed himself at the Gloucester assizes when a solicitor asked that certain references to the health of his client should not be published.

"My experience of the press," said the judge, "is that they have no desire to injure any person. They desire only to publish to the public such information as will interest them, and I leave it to the discretion, which is always admirably exercised."

HOT FOOT BATHS EFFECTIVE IN BREAKING UP OR PRE-VENTING COLDS

One of the humorous illustrations of former years was that of an individual, sneezing and blowing his nose, sitting with feet in hot water. Hot water was thought to be helpful in breaking up or warding off a cold. Thus, it was not unusual for those who had been out in the cold and dampness to put their feet in hot water at the end of the day.

It would seem that in these days of trying to keep blood and tissues alkaline, the use of drugs to produce heat and perspiration, and the application of adrenalin (epinephrine) and ephedrine (the Chinese drug) to "dry up" the great amount of water that is formed in the nose in head colds, nasal catarrh and hay fever, that putting the feet in hot water to break up or ward off attacks of the above ailments has gone out of fashion.

It is interesting, therefore, to read of the experiments of a European research physician, O. Murk, who studied the effects of hot foot baths in these attacks of sneezing, congested nose and nasal catarrh. He was able to show that hot foot baths will reduce or completely counteract attacks of vasomotor rhinitis—inflammation of lining of nose causing catarrh or excess fluid.

Now, this knowledge that hot foot baths by stimulating the circulation and drawing blood from the head help to break up or prevent head colds, acute catarrhal attacks and congestion of the nose, should give us more confidence in other methods also of help in correcting or preventing these conditions.

The old family method of giving a dose of salts has much to recommend it. The salts not only cleanse the intestine, help to take accumulated poisons of the blood, stimulate the flow of bile which destroys harmful organisms, but also alkalize the blood.

The use of drugs to create heat is helpful as heat stimulates the body's fighting forces.

CHAPTER I

The black letters on the white sign read, "Ocean City." Arlen slowed down the car, turned into the corner of the street, and drove several blocks along a sunny street dotted with sun-burned people in bathing suits and gay beach pyjamas. The roar of the ocean was in her ears and the salt air filled her lungs—she felt tired and dusty from her long lonely drive.

At the desk of a hotel on the beach she wrote, "Arlen Leeds, Ruston, Maryland," in a large bold script, and followed the porter up two flights of carpeted steps into a bedroom overlooking the ocean. The porter murmured "Thank you" for a generous tip and went out, leaving Arlen closed in with the feeling of loneliness and bitterness that had driven her from home.

The mirror on the white dresser reflected a tall and rather graceful girl going about the business of unpacking and hanging up several pretty dresses, a girl with soft yellow hair that framed a face both sensitive and strong. When she drew her dark brows together, her eyes, deep hazel, had the look of passion in them though ordinarily they were warm laughing eyes. Today in every movement there was a gesture of defiance, even in the tears that quivered near her lashes.

When she had dressed in a white knitted frock and slipped her bare feet into tall-heeled white sandals, she stood before the mirror and squared her shoulders. "I won't go back, I shall never go back."

The dining-room of the hotel was cool and cheerful. As Arlen followed the waiter to a small table by the window, her attention was attracted by a young man, though certainly she was in no mood to notice even a man so good looking as he. She ordered luncheon, lit a cigarette, and looked at him again.

He was talking with a small wiry little man not less than eighty years old, with a white beard which gave him a distinguished appearance. The young man looked both interested and amused. Later Arlen was to think that her first impression of Renny Maynard, her first adjective describing him, fitted him perfectly—amused. At everything and everyone he looked with the poised amusement of a man standing on the outside—invulnerable. Obviously he was a man of the world. There was no self-consciousness about him. He was neither young enough to pay petty compliments nor old enough to be foolish. He would, she thought with quick perception, say the correct things, dance perfectly, and order the best drinks.

Attacking the chicken with the appetite of a hungry traveler, she quite forgot about tall Renny Maynard in a white linen suit. Somehow, being here in this strange room seemed grotesquely unreal.

After the painful scenes at home the dining-room was maddeningly quiet. Arlen felt some of her tenseness subside and give way to a drowsy contentment. Over dessert she lit another cigarette and contemplated what lay before her.

At three o'clock in the afternoon the beach was crowded. Young couples ran after their errand to the dining room. Sun-brown boys and brown girls played ball over other people's heads. The sun beat down steadily. There was a feeling of "Oh, it's so cold," at the first contact with the ocean. There was much screaming and yelling and high excitement.

Arlen spread her robe on the hot sand, and sat down, put on her sun glasses, and exposed an already brown body to the sun. There were, she discovered, only two damp patches when she attempted to light a cigarette in the mild breeze. Each one gave a feeble glow and went out. Suddenly as she sat there with a cigarette between her lips, a lighter with a "water" brand was applied to it. She turned, looked up at the donor, and frowned. "Thank you," she said, and through the dark glasses Renny Maynard looked handsome and brown in abbreviated swimming trunks with a white robe thrown over his arm.

She never felt that their acquaintance began by a beach flirtation. Of course, she never knew that Renny had walked up the beach twice looking for the proud head of yellow hair that had attracted him.

EATS ANYTHING— SLEEPS LIKE BABE

"I suffered years with indigestion. I took all kinds of medicines but had no relief so I gave up, until one day I bought a bottle of Eno's, and before the bottle was half done I felt like a new man. So now I can eat anything and sleep like a baby. Getting up in the mornings I am full of pep."

everything my mother cherished and loved. Last night when she came down flaunting mother's pearls, I couldn't stand it. I made a frightful scene at the table. I lost my temper. Oh, it was awful. And this morning I drove down here to cool off. But I haven't cooled off. It's not only Karen, you see, wearing my mother's jewels, but my father is making such a fool of himself and hating me—"

"Are you going back?"

"She looked away. 'I don't know what I'm going to do. Father told me not to come back until I could respect his wife—respect that cheap woman. I can't. I haven't very much money—'"

He shot a quick glance at her. "There's marriage, you know."

"Yes," she said gravely. "There's a boy who wants to marry me. But I don't want to marry before I've lived. If I marry Philip, I'll feel the end of my life—Marriage shouldn't do that. It should be the beginning."

"You are running away from something—perhaps an unhappy love affair. You are fighting something. A girl of your type doesn't come to a seaside resort alone."

"Not at all. We'd better go in."

"I'll go behind you. Keep away from the jetty."

As each wave approached, a small mountain topped by salty foam, she stretched out, her arms before her, and rode it in. Salt stung her eyes. The undertow was fierce. She struggled against it thinking, "He's behind me. I'm not afraid." A torrent of rain beat against her face and head. With the last ounce of energy she gained the beach and got to her feet. He put her robe around her and they climbed the steep sandy bank and hurried to the basement beneath the hotel.

"I feel," she said, shivering, "as though I've been washed. I simply ache."

"You're quite a fighter," said Renny, rain dripping from his dark hair.

She turned and looked up. "You should see me in one of my fighting moods—'Thank you,' she said, 'for being there.'"

Reluctantly, she was awakened from warm sleep about six by repeated knocks on her door. Wrapping a negligee around her, she opened it and a grinning porter held out a bottle of wine with a note. When she closed the door, she took the note from the envelope.

"Wine is excellent for safe-guarding one from a cold," she read. Arlen smiled and put the bottle on her dresser. A moment of Renny Maynard and a Summer storm.

When she went into the dining-room that evening wearing a pale green evening dress, her hair smooth and bright and shining, she looked very different from the dripping, fighting, shivering girl in the ocean. Renny nodded and smiled. "You look like a little girl," he said. "Dinner was considerably less lonely than luncheon with Renny Maynard sitting near."

At nine o'clock she had not stirred from the chair on the porch except to go upstairs and fetch a short silk coat. The rain had stopped. Patches of light were breaking through the darkness. The boardwalk was filled with couples hurrying to the pier to dance.

"Now that Mr. Winstead is safely in bed—"

Arlen looked up. Renny smiled. "Of course," he said, "I didn't think I'd be lucky enough to find you here." He put his pipe between his teeth. "Shall we walk, Miss Leeds? There doesn't seem to be much else to do."

She had a feeling of well-being, a feeling of security with him. He did not seem at all a stranger. He was tolerant and kind and she knew that all too willingly she could warm her cold hands at tolerance and kindness. That he was not curious about a girl being at a hotel alone, a girl whose mouth was often firm and bitter pleased her and yet on the other hand, his lack of curiosity piqued her into wanting to tell him why she was here.

They walked to a deserted end of the boardwalk and paused under an arch light. Music from some distant hotel floated out on the air. Arlen's eyes were hidden. Casual conversation had worn thin. All the misery and hurt of the past ten months tapped against the door of her mind to be said to Renny Maynard who would understand. With-

WORK OVERTIME ON CORONATION

Earl Marshal Must Choose
Audience for Abbey and Direct Ceremonies

LONDON, Nov. 24 (AP)—Upon the twenty-eight-year-old former cavalry officer, the Duke of Norfolk, rests the duty of stage managing one of the greatest pageants of a generation, the coronation of King Edward VIII.

More onerous still is his task of picking the audience. By installing a gallery and crowding the seats Westminster Abbey can be made to hold between 7,000 and 8,000 persons. Throld thousands would like invitations; at least five times the number who can be admitted may think their high positions or titles entitle them to be present.

STAGE MANAGER
Fortunately for himself, the stage manager occupies a place in society from which he is immune to retaliation from disappointed ticket seekers. Few are in a position to snub the 16th Duke of Norfolk, hereditary Earl Marshal and Chief Butler of England, premier Duke and Earl.

Already the Duke has given up residence at Arundel Castle, Sussex, his principal estate, to full-time work on the difficult problems of the coronation. Associated with him are the officers of the College of Heralds, of which he is president in study of century-old decisions on precedence.

His offices occupy a whole house near Buckingham Palace, a ten-hour day will be the rule from now until just before the coronation—next May 12.

The Duke, who is unmarried, received his initiation into ceremonial affairs last January, when he was in charge of King George's funeral. So far he has not displayed the interest in public affairs which resulted in many of his ancestors reaching other extremely high public offices—and in the execution of others for attempting rebellions.

SINCE the Middle Ages the Duke of Norfolk had almost always been Earl Marshal, and the practice has been unbroken since 1672.

FIRST OF PEERS
Time was when the Earl Marshal stood next to the King at the coronation and helped him put on the crown. This has been discontinued, but the Duke—also Earl of Arundel, Baron Maitland, Earl of Surrey, Baron Fitzalan, Clun, and Oswaldestry, Earl of Norfolk—will be the first of the peers, after those of the royal family, to kiss the King's left cheek and touch the crown with his right hand in token that

How "Single" Whiskies get married

"Here in Kilmarnock," said Johnnie Walker, "we don't marry the 'single' or separate whiskies until they have matured for long years in the wood and are old enough to be blended as Johnnie Walker. The Blender then decides how to blend them to achieve perfect harmony and 'roundness'."

"Every time you drink Johnnie Walker you realize how happy the marriage has been, and so you will always ask for Johnnie Walker by name."

and all the members of his respective order shall defend the throne against every assailant."

That all will go smoothly at the coronation is taken as a foregone conclusion because of the careful preparations that have made British royal pageants of unique impressiveness. It is recalled the work was done badly at the coronation of George III, where the procession was very late and the ceremony dragged on for more than six hours.

But there a Norfolk was not in charge. The Duke could not come, and Lord Effingham was taking his place. Regretted for his carelessness, the nobleman disrespectfully replied: "It is true, sir, that there has been some neglect; but I have taken care that the next coronation shall be regulated in the exactest manner possible."

George III, however, went on to reign sixty years.

A clergyman, receiving an anonymous letter reproaching him for driving to church in a fine new car, and reminding him that this was not the Lord's way of traveling, read the letter from the pulpit. Finishing reading, the clergyman said: "I admit that it is not. But if the writer of this letter will come to my house next Sunday, bridled and saddled, I shall take great pleasure in following our Lord's example in this as in all other matters within my power."

Mrs. Gossip (to her next-door neighbor)—Did your husband go to the club dinner?
Neighbor—Oh, yes, he went all right.
Mrs. Gossip—And did he deliver his speech?
Neighbor—Oh, he must have delivered his speech because he was speechless when he came home.

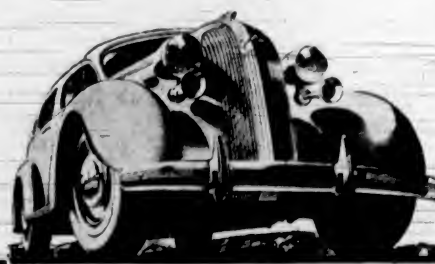

ONLY GRAHAM builds an engine that PREVENTS excessive wear during "cold starting"

At the first touch on the starter, Graham . . . and only Graham . . . provides instantaneous lubrication to pistons and cylinder walls. This immediate lubrication prevents excessive wear which can be caused by lack of oil on cylinder walls. This lack of oil occurs in all engines due to the "draining back" action of the oil when the car stands still overnight. Graham guards against this by making oil instantly available at the first piston stroke.

For years engineers have struggled to end this greatest single cause of engine wear . . . winter starting! Graham has succeeded . . . and only Graham!

You can buy your new Graham now . . . at the start of winter . . . with full confidence. It's the only car that's protected by five months ahead of people who buy their cars in the Springtime.

ENGLISH CUP SOCCER TO COMMENCE TOMORROW

First Rounds Will Send Sixty-Eight Clubs Into Action

Third Division, Minor and Amateur Leagues Prepared for Important Matches in Old Country—Sunderland and Portsmouth in League Games—Scottish League Matches Set

LONDON, Nov. 26.—League football fades from the spotlight in England and Wales this week-end as sixty-eight clubs representing the Third Division and minor and amateur leagues, battle in the first round proper of the English Cup competition.

Third Division squads enter the fray for the first time Saturday, but twenty-seven other teams are the survivors of scores of tough struggles among little-known clubs in the qualifying rounds. Chester, Luton and Port Vale Third Division teams, are exempted from the initial round.

Minor leagues are exerting every effort to remain in the competition that ends with the final at Wembley early in May, but little is expected from the amateurs, although Corinthians are eager to end a long string of defeats. The famous amateurs who play Bristol Rovers on the old cup final ground at the Crystal Palace, have not won a match in the major rounds of the cup since 1920 when they defeated Norwich City. Their chances Saturday are not particularly bright as they will play without Bernard Joy and R. D. R. Shearer, two of their stars.

Southall, another amateur outfit that made history last year by reaching the third round, has a difficult task at Cardiff, but Watlington Avenue, a London club, may surprise Northampton Town. Crystal Palace and Southend meet in the cup competition for the first time. Brighton plays Queen's Park

Arsenal is expected to play Grayston at right-half in place of Bastin. In its efforts to get out of last place, Manchester United—has signed Breen, Belfast Celtic's international goalkeeper. He will play at Leeds.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE

GLASGOW, Nov. 26.—Some of the less fortunate clubs in the Scottish Football League may provide surprises on Saturday in what appears an unattractive list of fixtures. The leaders, with the exception of fifth-place Third Lanark, have soft games, on paper at least.

Third Lanark goes to Dundee, where a hard-fought match is likely. The home team, up with the championship contenders for most of the season to date, has struck a bad patch recently—but is certain to play its hardest to hand the Cathkin Park club its second reverse in nine starts. The Dundee squad went under 5-0 against Falkirk last Saturday.

Although Aberdeen has only a one-point advantage over Celtic, it is likely to retain its place this week-end. The Dons are at home against Hamilton Academical, and Celtic also will perform before its own supporters, with Dunfermline supplying the opposition. Mid-week forecasts favor the home teams.

Glasgow Rangers, the pugnacious go to Cowbridge for a match with Albion Rovers. One point up on Hearts in fourth place and three behind Celtic, the Rangers have not lost a game this season. They have won nine and drawn seven. Another entry in the win column should be made after Saturday's contest.

HEARTS TO TRAVEL

Hearts are expected to retain their single-point margin over Third Lanark. The Edinburgh club has an away game with Queen's Park, and it is highly improbable the Dummies eleven will have the power to hold the fast-stepping visitors.

Falkirk has shown real form during the past month and is now included in the first ten. The team has a good chance of strengthening its position with a home game against Hibernian.

Completing the ten-game schedule, Arbroath entertains St. Mirren, St. Johnstone goes to Kilmarnock, and Queen's Park and Clyde battle on the former's great enclosure at Hampden Park.

Chief attraction in the Second Division is the St. Bernard's-Ayr United clash. Ayr is at the top of the league with 24 points, one up on St. Bernard's and Morton. Arbroath, in fourth place, are away to Morton in another important contest.

Ike Boone Released

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—President Cliff Oakley of the Toronto International League Baseball Club announced today he had released Ike Boone as manager, strengthening rumors that the club would be sold soon, possibly to Dan Howley, Boone's former manager.

The Primate of All Canada has appointed Advent Sunday as a day of thanksgiving for the completion of the Restoration Fund campaign. For the Restoration Fund $89,223.76 was raised, with an additional sum of $102,595.51 for the special maintenance fund, making a total of over $200,000.

Wrestlers Kayo Referee

Do those rattle boys play rough? So rough, in fact, that when Referee Bill Weideman tried to break a stranglehold George Zaharias had on Everett Marshall, in a match in Cleveland, Mr. Referee was kayoed completely. Marshall finally grand-slammed Zaharias. In the photo, Zaharias is the rattle on top, with Referee Weideman, in the white shirt—out cold.

BARNEY ROSS RISKS CROWN THIS EVENING

Welter Champion Meets Jannazzo in Fifteen-Round Clash Tonight

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Chicago Barney Ross is a 3-to-1 favorite to successfully defend his world's welterweight crown against Jannazzo, New York East-Sider, in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

The boys are scheduled over the fifteen-round championship route with the winner pledged to defend the crown against Coferrino Garcia, hard-hitting West Coast welterweight, within sixty days. About all the Jannazzo money in evidence is wagered on Ross failing to score a knockout within six beats.

LOOKS EASY
On paper it looks like an easy victory for Barney, but smart fight men who saw Jannazzo fight Garcia to a furious fifteen-round draw a few weeks ago are not at all sure that Ross is going to have a walk-away.

Jannazzo, they point out, will pour a broadside of left-hand jab into the champion and unless Barney has been schooled against this particular style of attack he may find the going rough.

Against Garcia, a hard hitter, the East Side hot simply wouldn't be beaten. He took punishment but was right there at the finish, jabbing away with his left and doing a pretty fair job of boxing.

Both boys have shown well in their preliminary workouts. Ross is defending the title for the first time since he defeated Jimmy McLarnin in May, 1935.

BADMINTON CLUB DANCE TONIGHT

The annual dance of the Victoria Badminton Club will be held this evening at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, from 8 to 1 o'clock. Club officials yesterday reported a large demand for tickets for the event, one of the most popular of the season. A first-class orchestra will be in attendance.

Saanich Thistles (first division)—Chalmers, Exler, Harper, Williams, Leggett, Speller, Stoffer, Turner, Sage, D. Gent, K. Gent, Crowe, Miles, Robbins and English.

THE TUTTS ... By Crawford Young

THE PENCIL WRECKER By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

How It Started By JEAN NEWTON

INFANTRY—FROM "CHILD"

Infantry, by which we understand soldiers serving on foot as distinguished from cavalry, first meant a body of children.

Jane Dixon Says:

LET'S TAKE TIME OUT TO LISTEN TO A TRIBUTE PAID TO THE WISE AND LOVING PARENTS WHO REGARD THEIR CHILDREN AS A SACRED TRUST

While all these complaints about tyrannical parents are coming in, let's take time out to listen to a tribute paid to the wise and loving parents who regard their children as a sacred trust. It has to do with a Christmas spent by the writer of today's letter and her three brothers with their uncle, a missionary doctor in Burma, India.

Dear Miss Dixon: I read your column which told of a person sending you a message from China telling about the lepers in her district. My two brothers and I were triplets, thirteen years old, at that time. My youngest brother was eleven, but we still talk about our Christmas in Burma. There were 112 lepers in the asylum, from four to sixty-five years of age, and how they looked forward to the holiday. Uncle Bob and Aunt Jane gave their lives to the cause. They suffered great inconvenience, but they had enduring love for one another and boundless devotion for their patients, so sacrifice was a joy. The lepers had decorated the asylum grounds with white-washed bamboos and with colored papers of all colors, cut into borders and figures of every kind. The grounds were immaculately clean.

FOR LITTLE GIFTS

If you could have seen the smiles on the faces as we came into the grounds. As we gave out our clothing, I thought to myself no boy or girl in England or America could be happier at receiving a new suit of clothes or a new dress than were these unfortunates over a two-dollar outfit. My brothers and I gave them towels, soap and food, and toys for the children. One little boy took a yellow ball I gave him and danced about crying "kiese, kiese," which means "joy, joy."

When I read some of the letters sent to you by persons who are unhappy, by wives and husbands who can't get along peacefully together, I can't help thinking that if they had come from God-fearing homes, if they had been raised by strict but loving parents, their lives would have been different.

Of course, I am convinced that my own parents were the best and dearest in the world. They taught my brothers and me to be humble, kind, to be unselfish and honest.

As a result of this training, we give the utmost respect and love to father and mother.

Father was not a missionary, as you might conclude from this letter. He was an officer in the Indian Army, where we children were all born and raised.

SHE PILES SPOILED CHILDREN

I have nothing but pity for those who were spoiled as children and grow into selfish, disoriented men and women. I've read your column every day since my arrival in this country last May, and when I return to England to finish college this Autumn, my uncle is going to send me the paper in which it is published every day. In January I finish my course, and go to India to teach school, so after the first of the year, your column will be coming to me away out there. Thanks for it.—J. A. B.

Answer: Such a sincere appreciation makes a columnist feel not only humble, but infinitely grateful for the opportunity to serve.

Congratulations to you, J. A. B., for having the kind of parents who can instill so much gentility and gratitude into a human heart.

I hope that some of the mothers and fathers who undertake to mould children into fine men and women by fitting them with fear, resorting to harsh commands and heavier straps, will read your letter and have the good grace to blush for their blundering.

To be able to reverse one's father and mother is a precious privilege. The memory of an orderly childhood directed by loving hands and brains is a pearl beyond price.

May the best of all good things follow you, along with this column, to England and to India.

chair. He doesn't know the first thing about the papers he signs, but he refuses to retire and nothing can pass without his trembling signature. I'm going back in a few days. I'm afraid his waltz will have to wait until after that."

"Back where?"
"To New York."
"You live there, too?"
"When I can't get away. Shall we go back now?"

"Where I'll spend an absolutely sleepless night thanking kind providence for sending you here for one of Mr. Winslow's trembling signatures."

"Not sending me to Mr. Winslow?" Renny corrected gently. "Sending me to you."
Standing beside the door of her room, her coat off one bare shoulder, she said seriously, "There is a reason why you understand women so well. But I shall never ask you." He grinned handsomely in the half light of the narrow hall.

"I'm sorry. Your confidence really deserves mine."

He turned and went straight to his room, leaving Arien to a sleepless night in a strange bed, weaving hazy dreams of a new life. In those dreams one person was very clear—Renny's tall angular figure, his deep-set eyes, the way he smiled, and the very masculine gesture of putting his pipe between his teeth. Dawn was breaking over the ocean and making colors on the water when excited exhaustion put her to sleep.

Renny wrote to Louise of Arien's domestic difficulties. Knowing her, he did not expect her to understand—sympathizing.

"I could send her to you as your guest because she'd be a credit to you and your famous parties. But she's the proudest creature and insists upon working for her keep. No non-jurist impulse prompts this noble gesture of mine, my dear Louise. She's a beautiful girl with plenty of spirit, and she knows so many unattached young men. Perhaps after a sophisticated fling she'll settle down with the practical youth who obviously bore her. I am, as you know, a man removed from any romantic feelings toward any woman, even one as lovely as Arien Leeds."

"Did you see Christa abroad this summer? Probably at a bar with her latest annexation. Allison is still with mother in Maine. She's fine. I'll call on you when I get to New York."

Arien will probably have to have the final scene at home, and her poor frustrated father who married a gold-digger will think she's met the Big Bad Wolf in a white linen suit who is going to lead her to perdition."

During the next few days while Renny tried to coax a signature from Mr. Winslow, Arien had leisure to contemplate what was finished and what was about to begin. There were few devoted ties to sever when she accepted this unusual offer. Renny had made from the past she would take only the sweet memory of her mother and the memory of an ordinary, uneventful childhood and early girlhood. But there was not one man among her wide acquaintances who stirred her. In the least, no man whose presence made her a little breathless or whose approach caused her heart to leap. Her sister married friends said "You'll get over that, my dear," but she knew she never would. Love could not be a dull smug thing. It had to be high breathless ecstasy. It had to make the world whirl around your head.

It had to sweep you, make an ardent flame in you.

Philipp—he would miss him, miss his steady companionship, his loyalty, his devotion. While he declared there was no other girl for him, he would marry a girl who appreciated his fine practical qualities and live in a lovely house furnished by his wealthy parents. Lacking imagination, high ecstasy to Philipp meant home and home fires and the sight of Arien's yellow head.

Although she was with Renny a great deal, although they talked both sense and nonsense while they swam or sat on the beach or walked the boardwalk at night, she never had been able to prick the invulnerable armor he wore. He was by far the most amusing and interesting man she had ever known. He had a wealth of knowledge about everything, and though he never directly talked about himself, by words carefully dropped in conversation, she knew that he had come from an impeccable New England family, that Harvard was his alma mater, and that Paris and London were as familiar to him as New York.

Not once did he overstep the bounds of friendship. Had he been older, less handsome, his frank unconcern of her as a pretty girl would have been less disconcerting. There was but one answer to that and Arien guessed it. He was either in love, or some woman had hurt him. Renny, being what he was, would shed no tears and ask for no pity. That strong determined jaw was not for nothing.

The past, she thought, sitting on the bench at six o'clock one evening when every one else had gone in to dress for dinner, was over. The future began. Arien let the sand run through her fingers. Suddenly she saw Renny descending the sandy bank. Heedless of immoderate white flannels, he sat down beside her.

"Here's a special from Louise," he said. "I'll read it to you. Her handwriting is as bad as mine. I hope yours is good."

"It's very modernistic," said Arien, uttering a solemn prayer of hope.

Renny scooped as he read. "By all means," he writes, "send me a social secretary. I never thought of one before and it's a perfectly splendid idea. You can tell Miss Leeds that I shall pay her thirty-five dollars a week for reminding me of my appointments going shopping with me, balancing my personal accounts, and attending my parties. There's a dearth of new faces among my administrators and a pretty new one will be delightful. Richard says he's very glad I'm to have a social secretary because I'm always late and half the time forget where I'm going. You didn't inherit your sister's absent-mindedness. Tell Miss Leeds also about Tony Santer, will you, Renny? I think she'll like him. Christa—"

He stopped. His voice went suddenly flat.

Policeman—So you're trying to make me believe you won this silver cup in your school sports, are you? Then, why do you carry about in a sack?

Burglar—For sentimental reasons. You see I won it in a sack race.

Arien, at twenty-one, had often been a bridesmaid, and most of the brides she had attended had flung their bouquets at her over white staircases. But there was not one man among her wide acquaintances who stirred her. In the least, no man whose presence made her a little breathless or whose approach caused her heart to leap.
